1. 4:45pm Call to order

Chair LaRock called the meeting to order at 4:47pm. The order of public comments, student trustee report and chair's report was slightly altered to allow the MCCC members to coordinate the reading of the public comments.

2. 4:46pm Public Comments

Donna Davis, Ulises Arcos-Castrejon and Sara Hilinski read the following statement:

A year ago, we, the faculty and professional staff of NSCC, members of the MCCC union, stood before you to explain why we voiced a No Confidence Vote in the College's senior leadership as well as ideas on how we could move forward together. The mediation promised at the time yielded no helpful results as responding to COVID became the priority. The former President and Vice President of Human Resources retired and the Vice President of Student Affairs resigned. A new interim President joined us in July and promoted two Assistant Vice Presidents to serve as Interims in Student Affairs and Human Resources. Temporary management changes, COVID, and concerns over finances and the College's future have been at the forefront. But we want to remind the Board and management of NSCC that more work needs to be done to regain our confidence in administration and lead us through the challenges that face our institution in the years ahead.

We have seen some hopeful beginnings. Over the past several months, most senior managers have agreed to monthly meetings with our Union leaders, which have been positive steps towards more open communication and collaboration, and have allowed the free exchange of useful feedback on several occasions. The Presidential Search is proceeding in a transparent manner and with ample representation of faculty and staff on the Committee. Interim President

Bryant has engaged the faculty and staff in the discussion of what needs to be done to make NSCC successful for the future. He has also focused on identifying factors contributing to morale issues and listened to suggestions for improving the culture at NSCC. We await a hopeful implementation of such improvements, recognizing we are somewhat in a waiting pattern right now until the presidential search is concluded. Yet we still hope that some changes can be made soon, over the next few months.

While communication and transparency have improved from a year ago, we continue to be concerned that faculty and staff are not part of significant decisions where our input is vital. Governance processes are not being adhered to and cutting the Culinary program without this decision going through the prescribed governance process is one such example. Committee and Forum feedback could have provided new strategies or at the very least, affected folks could have been respected and felt heard.

More program cuts and changes could follow in the days ahead and it is imperative to adhere to the processes prescribed in the governance bylaws. You have a caring, invested, top-notch, highly experienced faculty and staff -- partner with us to your advantage instead of taking this burden on for yourselves. Decisions are still being rushed at times and made in silos where the greater good is not fully considered. Management sometimes recognizes this and seems open to improvement when we bring it to their attention after the fact, but we are far from where we need to be. Buy-in is important and top-down management is ineffective in an institution of higher education in 2021.

There are several current situations where major disagreements have occurred, leaving faculty and staff in unfair situations which could have been prevented. We realize that improvement can take time with interims in place. However, more work can and should be done in the short term. To chart a strong path to North Shore Community College's success, we strongly urge that Management incorporate faculty and staff into decision making, including those involving program or organizational changes; adhere to prescribed Governance processes; and invest strategically for the future, rather than rushing to easy cuts and making significant decisions without input from those in the front lines, most connected to our students. Your faculty and staff are crucial to steer our College to a thriving future in the transformed landscape of higher education.

After the above statement was read, there was also an additional comment by Katelyn Ma about concerns as to how funding sources were being implemented.

Chair LaRock thanked the MCCC for noting progress and raising issues.

Chair LaRock commented on the downward trajectory of net income and that action or inaction will become extremely consequential. There was discussion about areas of further expense reduction and potential of further program closures. Interim President Bryant added that there is also a need to make some strategic investments.
